Before Paper Planet

I will go to Fed Square in Melbourne to be part of a show called Paper Planet.

Fed Square is a gathering place in the city, made of sandstone cobblestones.

Paper Planet will be in The Edge at Fed Square - a big space made of glass and steel.

There will be friendly people who will let me know that I am in the right place. I can say hello if I want to.

Other people will also be arriving for Paper Planet.

During Paper Planet

There will be brown cardboard trees, and plants and creatures made from paper.

There will be soft rainforest sounds.

I can use my imagination and paper and tape to add to the world around me.

I can explore the forest,
or spend time feeling
what is going on around me.

I can choose what I do
in Paper Planet.

Other people will be creating and playing too.

Some Polyglot Theatre performers I might meet:

Afsaneh

Ashlee

Clem

David

After Paper Planet

When Paper Planet is finished, I can take my time to explore the space before I leave.

About Fed Square

For thousands of years, the land around Birrarung (the Yarra River) has been Melbourne's meeting place – an area of cultural significance for First Peoples and a place of creative expression. Today the site is home to the Melbourne Arts Precinct; a vibrant creative community and the artistic heart of our city.

Fed Square is the gateway to the art precinct – and as Melbourne's public square it is the civic, cultural and community heart of the city. It also home to three of Victoria's major cultural institutions: ACMI – Australia's Museum of Screen Culture, the Koorie Heritage Trust (KHT) and The Ian Potter Centre: NGV Australia.

Located opposite the iconic Flinders St Station, Fed Square is also Melbourne's premier meeting place, tourist destination and event venue for thousands of events a year – since opening in 2002, it has seen more than 100 million visits.

In 2019, Fed Square was listed on the Victorian Heritage Register, the youngest building in Australia to ever be recognised in this way.
